Deep-Sea Fishing Excursion

When is the best time to fish the Bazaruto Archipelago? Anytime.

A national park since 1971, the Bazaruto Archipelago is protected by strict conservation policies. A tag and release practice ensures sustainability and plentiful prize catches for all. These waters are renowned for Sailfish, Wahoo, Blue striped and black Marlin, Kingfish, Queenfish, Barracuda, Mackerel and Yellowfin tuna among others.Bazaruto season. This is pretty much a year-round fishery. Big game and heavy tackle fishing is at its best in the summer months between September to April. Sailfish peak season is usually in winter between May and September.

Bazaruto is amongst the three best places in the world to catch Giant Black Marlin. The season runs between late August to April, with the peak for the big fish being mid September to late December. Our two biggest weighted Black Marlin’ so far was a 1098 lbs that got tail wrapped and another that was sharked by the boat after 5 hours, which remains weighted at 1107 lbs (It went a whopping 1418 lbs on the formula). Bazaruto is still the only place in Africa to have produced Black Marlin over a 1 000 pounds and the All African record caught in these waters weighed 1298 lbs.
